Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Tuesday 02 Mar 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Low cloud and fog reforming again overnight.

This Evening and Tonight:
Low cloud becoming more extensive again, with some areas of thick fog developing across eastern and central England. Clearer skies and frost in the north-west. Showers into south-western parts.

Wednesday:
Showers in south-west moving further north-east into Wales and central and southern England, some heavy towards the west. Low cloud and fog slow to lift across central and eastern areas.

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Showery rain clearing the south then fine and dry with sunny spells. Cold with some hard night frosts. Cloud and rain pushing into the far northwest later Saturday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.